injoy the Rare Flavor of This Coffee of the Olden Time

For nearly 200 years-at the quaint old French Market in New Orleans-there has been served to visitors a famous coffee-blend renowned the world over. Society dames of old New Orleans gossiped over it. Andrew Jackson stopped there after his brilliant victory at Chalmette-and treated his troops to hot French Market Coffee. Henry Clay slipped out from the great banquet given in his honor in 1843—and enjoyed a cup of French Market Coffee with a few friends. It was a marvelous old coffee. People drank cup after cup at midnight. You may do the same today.
